SCAM-AWARE

Victim responded to an advertisement for Cane Corso puppies on TikTok and in response received the number 315-256-0286 to contact to purchase the puppies. The victim advised that he contacted the number and made a deal for $1800.00 and asked to see proof of ID and paperwork from the breeder who identified herself as Janet Kay Dean of West Virginia. The victim was sent an image of Janet Deans West Virginia driver's license and a "West Virginia Department of Agriculture Class A Breeder certificate." The victim sent payment through Zelle payment to "Chiani Williams" in the amount of $1300.00 then another $500.00 CASHAPP payment to a different phone number, 646-883-4607. After the transaction was completed the victim started feeling uneasy and thought he may be victim to a scam. He described the voice on the phone he made a deal with as a male voice with a Pakistani accent even though the photo ID provided was clearly a 71-year-old Caucasian female. He also called AKC breeding authorities and was told that there was no such license issued to Janet Dean and that the document he received was fraudulent. Once the victim reported the scam to the Sheriff's Office, the numbers the victim originally communicated with no longer worked.

Victim stated he received a phone call from 888-579-4065, advising they were with "Innovative Health Plans". The individuals over the phone advised the victim's coverage with Medicaid was going to expire and he needed to pay $242.90 in order to renew his coverage with Medicaid. The victim paid the amount of $242.90 over the phone with his Chime debit card number. The victim then received a letter advising him his Medicare coverage had been terminated. The victim contacted Medicaid, who advised him they would never reach out to him and ask him to pay to renew the coverage. The victim attempted to contact the number back who advised they were "Innovative Health Plans" but he was unable to get through and that is when he figured he had been scammed.

Victim received an email on August 17th from someone identifying themselves as Publishers Clearinghouse. Per the email, the victim won, among other things, approximately $7.5 billion, and just needed to pay some small fees for taxes to claim his prizes. The victim then contacted the suspects via phone, and they advised him they needed $1000 in gift cards before he could receive said prizes. After obtaining the gift cards, the suspects requested the victim scratch off the area for the serial and send them photos of said serials, but advised that, since he still retained the card itself, the money couldn't be spent. The victim did so, and the suspects followed up two (2) more times, requesting $400 in gift cards each time. Finally, the prizes were supposed to be delivered on September 9th, but the suspects advised it was delayed. Consequently, they requested an additional $1700 to continue moving the process along. The victim became highly suspicious at this point, stated he didn't have and wouldn't provide those funds, and then called Publisher's Clearinghouse to confirm whether he had been scammed. Unfortunately, they confirmed this to be a scam.
